

James Hutton Hayter, 1793 ~ 1856

James Hutton Hayter, born 1793, Hayters Gap, Washington, Virginia, death 1856, Howard County, Missouri. Married 1816.

Sarah L. Fulkerson, born October 23, 1794, Lee County, Virginia, death 1855, New Franklin, Missouri

Elizabeth Hayter

William S. Hayter, born 1821, Missouri

Washington Lafayette Hayter, born March 12, 1825, Howard County, Missouri, death July 21, 1909, Myrtle Point, Oregon. Married 1856, Polk County, Oregon, to Sarah Catherine Crowley, born October 20, 1840, Holt County, Missouri, death September 26, 1883, Coquille, Oregon. Fifteen children

Thomas J. Hayter, born February 8, 1830, Franklin, Howard, Missouri, death October 30, 1918, Dallas, Oregon. Married to Mary I. Embree, born about 1836, Howard County, Missouri. Five children

Abraham C. Hayter, born about 1832, Missouri

James H. Hayter was a native of Virginia who emigrated to Missouri about 1816, settling in the village of New Franklin, then a small hamlet in the very outskirts of civilization. Here he established a sawmill and a flouring mill and also engaged in other manufacturing and agricultural pursuits, becoming one of the leading business men of his community.

He married Sarah Fulkerson, a native of Lee County, Virginia, and a descendent of one of the old families of the south. They continued to reside in New Franklin until 1856, when they became victims of the cholera epidemic which swept over Missouri and the states along the Mississippi.

